

GOING GREEN

Top tips for lowering your carbon footprint and learning to lead a greener lifestyle

Green and GORGEOUS

It is not often that you get the opportunity to purchase a chic wardrobe accessory, which will also appease your ecological and charitable conscience. Give It Bags are made from recycled material and 50 per cent of the profits from the sale of these bags is donated to a variety of charities.

Each bag is made from durable Polypropylen, which was previously used to package salt, sugar, rice, beans and flour. All the prints are original, so each bag is part of a limited edition collection.

green SHOP

The Green Shop is a great stop for all your environmentally charged shopping needs. While the shop has recently moved to 72 Waterkant street, Green Point in Cape Town, its wares are not limited to customers in the Cape – you can purchase any of their products online.

The products on offer range from practical such as natural cleaning products and solar-powered garden lights to quirky such as the wind-up "creatures" from Rio de Janeiro-based designer Chico Bicalho and Computer Bugz made from old bits of computers and silly putty.

A litter bit of responsibility

As school holidays approach everyone will be heading outdoors to enjoy the sun! While it is frustrating to see litter lying about, rather use your energy constructively and just pick it up. You will set a great example for those around you and inspire people to take responsibility for their environment.
